

ANTH135G : Introduction to Gender Studies

This course will provide an introduction to the concepts and principles of gender and identity. Within an anthropological perspective, the gendered issues of culture and ideology, socialization, family and intimate relationships, education, work and health are discussed. Gender discrimination and changing roles will also be examined through the context of the major themes.

Credits 3

Theory Hours 3

Lab Hours 0

Semester Offered

Fall semester